

Contents

INTRODUCTION, Thomas Donnelly and Frederick W. Kagan	1
What Is the “Long War”? 1
How Did We Get into the Long War? 4
Which Way Forward? 7
1. DOMESTIC POLITICS AND THE LONG WAR, Peter D. Feaver	11
Public Opinion 12
Partisan Politics 16
The Media and the Marketplace of Ideas 27
Conclusion 32
2. RENEGOTIATING THE CIVIL-MILITARY BARGAIN AFTER 9/11, Mackubin Thomas Owens	34
Public Acrimony 36
Military “Pushback” 40
The “Normal” Theory of Civil-Military Relations 43
Civil-Military Relations and the Constraints of Service Culture 47
The Unintended Consequences of Defense Reform 52
The Use of the Military in Domestic Affairs 57
Civil-Military Tensions in the Obama Administration 61
Conclusion 63
3. CENTRALIZATION VS. DECENTRALIZATION: PREPARING FOR AND PRACTICING MISSION COMMAND IN COUNTERINSURGENCY OPERATIONS, H. R. McMaster	64
Theory vs. the Reality of Counterinsurgency Warfare 65
Counterinsurgency Demands Decentralization 69
Preparation for Decentralized Counterinsurgency Operations 72
The Foundation for Operational Planning 79

vi CONTENTS

The Essential Elements of Operational Plans 83
Directing Counterinsurgency Operations 88
Conclusion 92

4. THE AIR FORCE AND TWENTY-FIRST-CENTURY CONFLICTS: 93
DYSFUNCTIONAL OR DYNAMIC? Charles J. Dunlap, Jr.
Air Force Culture and Leadership Development 96
An Airpower Renaissance? 104
The Civilian Casualty Conundrum 106
Airpower and COIN 108
Is Imitation Flattery or . . . ? 110
The Future 111

5. STRATEGY, COUNTERINSURGENCY, AND THE ARMY, 114
Robert Killebrew
Political Support for Counterinsurgency 117
Diplomacy's Role in Counterinsurgency 120
Military Assistance and Country Teams 121
Fighting Insurgencies in the Twenty-First Century 122
Recommended Strategies for Twenty-First-Century
Counterinsurgency 124
Conclusion 132

NOTES 135

INDEX 159

ABOUT THE AUTHORS 167